August 12th, 2142

DAILY NEWS

Latest news and bulletin updates

Issue #10

Richard Harrys

An update on climate

Ozone Layer State

As usual, Zycron usage is still dropping. Scientists suggest that there's still at least 0.5% of world's energy that's produced using it. Of course, we can't know from which this pollution comes from, we can only hope that somehow, these earth terrorists will see the light, and stop wasting precious time of survival we have left.

The state of the ozone layer is rather stable, that is, at its already poorly state. As a -kind of- positive note, the state of the layer allows sun's energy to be better received by Earth. Therefore, we observe high efficiency of solar panels energy. This fact was particularly true this week.

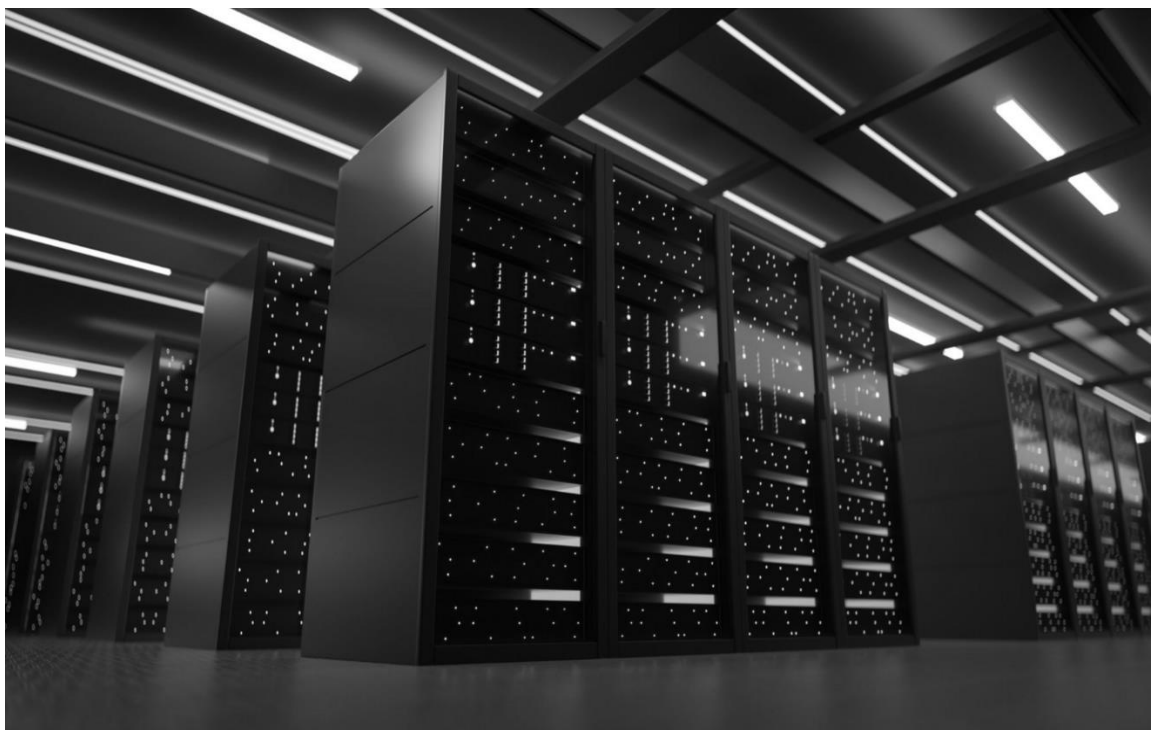

Climate Change

This week continues to beat heat milestones. Even though we increasingly use green sources of energy, we still have to bear the consequences of climate change, because the sun's energy is better received by Earth. At least, Beach resorts can't complain to this situation, as their revenue are better than ever. That's what said the owner of the Sunset Beach Motel (Las Angelos, Florida).

For the record, we reached a temperature of 52°C in a tiny town of Egypt. As far as we know, nobody died this time...

Figure : Sunset Beach Motel promotion picture - Florida

Christophe Bit

Illegal Terminals found by local authorities

The administration police force found some UNDERDOGS at Top HOME.

It's been a while that we haven't heard any news about UNDERDOGS, almost as if they finally gave up on their project. But alas, the surveillance department found some suspicious activity at the north-west part of Top HOME.

Fastly enough, the police went onto mission to check if the suspicious were true and seems like they were! They arrested an entire family chilling in their Metaverse. Thankfully, all the bodies were alive, so they were able to return to the real world. We heard that the children were sent to host families, while the parents will be trialed, and probably will be sentenced to rot in a prison cell for the rest of their life, as usual.

After the police arrested these criminals, the surveillance department returned to the house to inspect the Metaverse they lived in (before destroying it for good) : it's a standard protocol that is necessary to "ensure that they'll not shatter any SOUL in the process", as they say. This can also allow them to find another Metaverses, as some of them are sometimes interconnected. For our case, they didn't find anything.

We asked to a member of the surveillance department if we should finally expect this game of cat and mouse to be over, and here's what he answered : "you know, the hype about this fantasy world lasted for a pretty long time, that is, enough for people to get attached to it. It's sadly not surprising to still catch UNDERDOGS today, and in my opinion, we didn't even find 50% of the remaining terminals. The issue is that this kind of people is not really our main target : we firstly need to find the main scientists that still work on the project if there is".

School budget

The latest updates

Daniela Schoule

The administration increased the budget of all science-focused universities (2%). They say they want to upgrade astronomical material of universities, as it may incite more students to follow a path towards CONQUEST research

Updates on CONQUEST Project

The latest updates

Gary Squiks

This month, researchers found 103 new planets, searching now from 0.8 Light Years away from Earth. All these planets were not suited for life. The better one had a little of oxygen in its atmosphere, as well as an average 20°C temperature.

New Sport for Olympic Games !

The latest updates

Ron Dahlia

This week, the Olympic Committee finally registered Quidditch as an official sport of the 2144 Olympic Games edition (as for the following ones).