Brandon Brogniart said the N-Word on TV !

Clark McWrite, for TFNews magazine

WHAT HAPPENED ??

As we all know, Brandon made his debut in the TV business with the newest 139th season of Koh-Lanta, which is, we'll say, interesting.

Brandon tried a new approach with the series, which seemed at a first glance like a great idea : the new animator will try to feel its participants pain : He'll eat as much as the people living on the island, which is very few foods. This seemingly affected his mind, as the animator became more and more insane during the consecutive shows…

Brandon already showed us how poorly he behaves with its participants, insulting many times many of them. But this week, during the comfort trial, he insulted an entire population while Kyle Makkoo, a black person, was referred to as, we quote, "a useless piece of shit, that shows how worthy are niggers".

Obviously, Brandon did not get away with this. We don't know the details, but the animator will probably be fired, and may be sentenced to live on the island the game's occurring for the rest of his live !

HOW KYLE ENDURES THE SITUATION

Our team from TFNews Magazine interviewed Kyle Makkoo about this traumatic event :

"I wasn't expecting this from Brandon Brogniart. I always thought, as a kid, that his dad was a heck of an animator, I admired this guy, so of course I thought he would give great education to its children. But I was wrong…

At first, Brandon's behavior didn't bother me : I was kind of arrogant and sexist, but nothing too extreme. When I heard how badly he insulted me, I couldn't breathe, I collapsed on the hot sand. When I woke up, my teammates were beating him up, I never saw so much blood in my life, he got what he deserved !
